Wisteria frutescens Amethyst Falls

Botanical Name:	Wisteria frutescens Amethyst Falls
Common Names:	American Wisteria,
Native:	No
Foliage Type:	Deciduous
Plant Type:	Climbers, Hedging / Screening
Plant Habit:	Climbing / Twining, Dense, Spreading

Description:

Amethyst Falls is a non-invasive American variety of Wisteria which differs from others on the market which are of Asiatic origin. When in flower, Amethyst Falls sports a massive display of deep lilac coloured flowers which are produced on shorter than usual racemes (flower stems) giving a fuller effect. Flowering begins in spring with repeat flushes throughout summer. This is a climber which can be trained to climb posts or trellis, or when planted in a garden bed, can be left to trail over retaining walls, rockeries or embankments. It also looks fantastic when trained up a large tripod structure, and used as a feature in any garden. Grows approx 3m tall x 2m wide.

Mature Height:	2-4m	Position:	Full Sun, Semi Shade
Mature Width:	2-4m	Soil Type:	Any, Well Drained

Landscape Use(s): Balcony / Roof, Borders / Shrubbery, Climber / Creeper, Courtyard, Cut Flower, Feature, Formal Garden, Fragrant Garden, Groundcover, Hedging / Screening, Mass Planting, Container / Pot, Under Trees

Pest & Diseases:

Generally trouble free

Cultural Notes:

Plant in a moist free draining soil, with plants of similar water use. A light trim following flowering, and an annual feed of a general purpose slow release fertiliser in early spring will ensure a neat and healthy growth habit. Images and information courtesy of Plants Management Australia.
